

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA

CHARLESTON DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

v.

CRIMINAL ACTION NO. 2:19-cr-00078

BRANDON CARTER.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Pending before the court are two pro se letter-form motions for compassionate release, filed by Defendant Brandon Carter. [ECF Nos. 45, 46]. For the reasons that follow, the motions are DENIED without prejudice.

I. Background

On August 8, 2019, Brandon Carter pleaded guilty before this court to being a Felon in Possession of a Firearm in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 922(g)(1) and 924(a)(2). [ECF No. 35]. On February 20, 2020, I sentenced Mr. Carter to a term of 30 months imprisonment, followed by three years of supervised release. [ECF No. 46]. He is currently serving his sentence of imprisonment at the Federal Correctional Institution Gilmer in Glenville, West Virginia. Mr. Carter now asked the court for compassionate release because of his various medical diagnoses and the current public health crisis caused by COVID-19. [ECF Nos. 45, 46].

II. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies and Section 3582(c)(1)(A)

The First Step Act empowers criminal defendants to request compassionate release for “extraordinary and compelling reasons.” 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A)(i). But before they make such requests, defendants must ask BOP to do so on their behalf and give BOP thirty days to respond. See § 3582(c)(1)(A). Upon such a motion from BOP or from a defendant (after BOP denies the request or thirty days has elapsed since the request was filed), a court “may reduce the term of imprisonment....” 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A)(i). Though some district courts have waived Section 3582’s exhaustion requirement because of the COVID-19 pandemic,¹ the majority of district courts have found that failure to exhaust administrative remedies is a death knell to a defendant’s request for compassionate release.² I recently held in agreement with the majority of courts, finding that a defendant must exhaust his or her administrative remedies before motioning this court. United States v. Thompson, --- F.Supp.3d---, No. 2:18-CR-00105, 2020 WL 2121371, at *4 (S.D.W. Va. May 5, 2020). I adopt and incorporate my reasoning in Thompson here. See id.

Mr. Carter has not made any showing or representation to the court that he has exhausted his administrative remedies by filing a request with BOP and receiving a response or waiting the requisite 30 days. Accordingly, I do not reach the merits of Mr. Carter’s letter-form motions for compassionate release. The motions are DENIED without prejudice for failure to exhaust administrative remedies.

III. Conclusion

¹ See e.g., United States v. Paul Gileno, No. 3:19-CR-161-(VAB)-1, 2020 WL 1916773, at *5 (D. Conn. Apr. 20, 2020) (finding that the exhaustion requirement should be waived as undue delay in

Defendant's motions for compassionate release [ECF Nos. 45, 46] are DENIED without prejudice. The court DIRECTS the Clerk to send a copy of this Order to the defendant and counsel, the United States Attorney, the United States Probation Office, and the United States Marshal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE defendant's release could result in catastrophic health consequences for him in light of his underlying health conditions and the COVID-19 pandemic); United States v. Jones, Criminal No. 3:11cr249-MHL, ECF No. 47 (E.D. Va. Apr. 3, 2020) (finding that the defendant's "unique circumstances and the exigency of a rapidly advancing pandemic" justified waiver of the exhaustion requirement); United States v. Perez, No. 17 Cr. 513 (AT), 2020 WL 1546422, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 1, 2020) (finding that the defendant's "undisputed fragile health, combined with the high risk of contracting COVID-19 in the [Metropolitan Correctional Center], justifies waiver of the exhaustion requirement," because the defendant had "less than three weeks remaining on his sentence" and suffered "severe side effects" from two surgeries); United States v. Calvin, No. 19 Cr. 179 (JBA), 2020 WL 1613943, at *2 (D. Conn. Apr. 2, 2020) (finding that "all three exceptions to the exhaustion requirement apply to Defendant's request").
